A Message from the Library Director

by Rivkah Sass

I try to avoid looking forward or backward, and try to keep looking upward.

~ Charlotte Bronte

2013 is an opportune time to act for those who believe in the value and importance of libraries as well as in the power of the ballot box.

There are forces at work right now in the California State Legislature. Certain members have a vision as well as a specific plan to make it easier for voters to support local special taxes and bonds for construction by reducing needed voter approval from a two-thirds majority to 55%. Senator Lois Wolk (D-Davis) has introduced SCA-7, and it looks like other similar measures are being proposed to change how we as voters may choose to support our local institutions.

For SCA 7 to become a reality, it will need to pass both houses of the legislature (by a 2/3rds vote in each house) and be signed by Governor Brown. It would then be placed on the November 2014 statewide ballot, where a majority of the statewide electorate would need to vote in favor of it. If successful, all cities, counties, and special districts would have the authority to place a special tax for library operations and/or a library construction bond on their local ballots. Voters would thus have the opportunity to support sustainable funding for their community anchor—the public library.

Whether or not SCA-7 actually wins passage, the truly interesting thing is that the process to get it passed is helping all of us engage in a conversation about what services we are willing to support and what those services mean to us.

To learn more about Senator Wolk's efforts, please visit her website ~ <http://sd03.senate.ca.gov/> or search for Bill Text – SCA-7 Local gov.

Friends Advocacy Alert

President of the Friends of Sacramento Public Library Bob Gorham has sent an organizational letter of support to Senator Lois Wolk who introduced SCA 7, the constitutional measure that seeks to reduce the local vote threshold for special library taxes and construction bonds from the current two-thirds vote to 55%.

If you would like to follow this legislation and find out what you can do to help, please go to the California Library Association website at www.cla-net.org.

Meet the Friends: Joanne Murphy

By Carrie Sessarego

Joanne Murphy, with one of the books that she repaired.

Joanne is the Friends' resident bookbinder and restorer. For the past two years, she has been repairing problems both small and large that she detects in our older and more eclectic books. Many of these restored books are stars at the bi-annual Sacramento Antiquarian Book Fair. Recently Joanne restored a Bible that was dedicated to Branch Rickey and signed by the 1953 Pittsburgh Pirates!

Joanne became interested in book repair and binding about two years ago. She likes sewing and needlecrafts, so the detail-oriented aspect of book repair intrigued her. She took a course in book repair and developed a friendship with Pat Bruno, a local bookbinder. "After thirty years in book binding, Pat knows all the tricks," says Joanne. Working together weekly, Pat helped set up Joanne's own book repair shop, a gift from her husband last spring.

Repairing books requires a keen eye for detail and a lot of ingenuity. It is important to match the original materials as closely as possible. To that end, Joanne has used not only conventional products, but also things like tin foil and a corner from a box of waxed paper that happened to be just the right color. To match the different patterns of ink on speckled or mottled covers, she uses cotton balls, toothbrushes, and sponges. Often books contain surprising treasures within. When repairing covers, Joanne has found them stuffed and padded with all kinds of old documents, including old handbills, maps, and sheet music.

Joanne has had a lengthy career as a doctor specializing in emergency care. She says repairing books isn't that much different than repairing people. "I used to put people back together, and now I put books back together - same thing! It's just a book, and it doesn't complain, it doesn't threaten to sue you; it just sits there quietly and lets you work on it. But it involves the same kind of technicality that I liked."

Joanne's skills bring new life to books, providing a unique source of income to the Friends. The recently restored Bible now has a value of approximately $600, while sales from the Antiquarian Book Fair average around $2500 per day. Most important, Joanne's patient work turns books that often appear to be permanently damaged into precious and often valuable works of art again.

JasMin Khoe Brings Energy and Ideas to Friends Board

JasMin Khoe has been an invaluable asset to the Friends of the Library Board since she was elected in early 2012. A busy McClatchy High School senior with college applications on her mind, JasMin never stops bringing fresh ideas and energy to the Board. As a member of the Annual Dinner Committee of 2012, JasMin recruited students who led the Quote game and served as Table Quiz correctors. JasMin also worked on the dinner program and helped with set up and clean up. Dressed in costume as Abigail Adams, she greeted guests during the event and delivered a quote.

"I've always gone to the library", says JasMin, "and when a neighbor of mine told me there was an opening on the board for a teen, I applied." JasMin has a strong interest in building healthy communities, and she feels that the Friends are a powerful force in our community. "I love learning about how the community works and how many people are interested in helping the Library. It's great to see how many people are dedicated to helping the community".

JasMin's passion for helping communities goes far beyond Sacramento. Last year, as part of her school's Humanities and International Studies Program, she traveled to Rwanda to help fund and build a vocational school. This year JasMin is leading a book drive to send books to the school that she helped create. When she leaves college, JasMin says she would like to work in environmental studies or community development.

JasMin describes herself as "an average student trying to do my best and keep up with everything going on in the world." The Friends have been incredibly blessed by JasMin's energy and passion during her service to our Board and her community.

In Memoriam

Elk Grove Friends are mourning the loss of Doug Davolt, their long-time newsletter editor, who passed away last month after a short illness. Doug assisted at Elk Grove's semi-annual book sales and was an active participant at the Elk Grove short story and poetry events.

Friends Receive Book Donation from Book Nook Book Store

By Bob Gorham

It is always sad when the neighborhood loses a close friend. It is especially hard when that friend is a bookstore that had been operating for years. The Friends of the Sacramento Public Library received a telephone call from the owner of the Book Nook Bookstore in Orangevale just before it closed on December 15, asking if we would like to go through their inventory. Yes! So on Monday December 17 the Friends Mobile Calvary trekked out to Orangevale and loaded up 215 boxes of books, several bags, and armfuls of books and transported them down to the Friends Warehouse at 8250 Belvedere Avenue, Sacramento, where all of them will be sorted and sold at the Friends Book Den Book Store (same address) as well as through the Friends online Amazon Book Store and even at our future Warehouse Sales.

The Book Nook also donated a service counter, book shelves, and a truckload of books to the Rio Linda Friends Book Store to go along with their recently donated four big book shelves from the County of Sacramento.

A big "Thank You!" from us all to Book Nook owners Ed and Dolores Duarte for their many years of service to the community and for their generous donation to the Friends. A very special and hearty "Thank You!" to the Friends volunteers who came together so quickly and rendezvoused in Orangevale to sort, pack, carry, load, deliver, and then unload the books at the Friends Warehouse.

"A library outranks any other one thing a community can do to benefit its people. It's a never failing spring in the desert."

~ Andrew Carnegie
